David Crapo focuses his practice on state and local taxation.

David has extensive litigation experience and has tried hundreds of state and local tax matters before administrative tribunals and state and federal courts in Utah and numerous other states.

David is a frequent speaker on state and local tax issues and has presented at the annual Public Utilities workshop on Ad Valorem Taxation; the National Association of Property Tax Representatives, Transportation, Energy and Communications (NAPTR-TEC) Seminar; the American Property Tax Counsel Seminar; and the Lincoln Institute of Land Policy; among others.

Prior to joining Holland & Hart, David was a tax attorney at Crapo Smith PLLC.
